

The image shows a vertical photograph of the University of Florida's iconic tower on the left side. The tower is a tall, brick structure with a clock face near the top. The background of the photograph is a clear blue sky. The rest of the slide has a dark blue background with white and orange text.

UF INFORMATICS INSTITUTE

Meet & Greet and Seminar Series

October 27th 2014

Michael P. McDonald, PhD

Professor of Political Science
University of Florida

“Participatory GIS - The Case of Redistricting”

Jeffrey C. Johnson, PhD

Professor of Anthropology
University of Florida

“Social Networks and the Pursuit of Interdisciplinary Research”

The Informatics Institute brings together preeminent researchers that explore contemporary application areas across the university, with UF experts developing the tools and technologies that support and complement these studies.

All are welcome to attend this event.

Date: Monday, October 27

Time: 4:00-7:00PM

Location: Smathers Library 100

Light refreshments will be served